Civil Service, Rives to discuss problems

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
Editor in chief

Civil Service workers will meet with Eastern President Stan Rives Tuesday morning to discuss concerns they originally initiated with Rives in March.

Seventeen workers representing the Physical Plant, building service and clerical workers will meet with Rives for the second time in three months to discuss perceived problems in their work areas.

"It's basically the same thing (as the March meeting)," said carpenter Darrell Schmitt, who will be one of the workers from Eastern's Civil Service speaking with Rives Tuesday. "(Rives) indicated (at the first meeting) that he would get back with us and give us a progress report (on our concerns), but we haven't heard anything yet."

The concerns brought up at the March 1 meeting include a rising number of administrative employees in the Physical Plant while the numbers of those in the actual working ranks remains status quo.

"We expected some reaction or action - something positive - but we haven't received any feedback," Schmitt said, adding that although Rives hasn't personally, but Victor Robeson, the director of the Physical Plant, has made

"token attempts" to discuss some matters, such as a budget overview.

"But that's just going through the motions," Schmitt said. "They're not really doing anything. It's discouraging."

Rives said that Schmitt asked him to meet with the Civil Service workers, but he did not know exactly what was going to be discussed.

"I'm not sure I want to preempt the meeting," Rives said Monday night. "Mr. Schmitt

Girls State offers political experience

By EVETTE PEARSON
News editor

More than 600 high school girls are visiting Eastern as a part of the American Legion Auxiliary Illini Girls State to learn about the governmental process and take part in city and state elections.

"This will be a very busy week," said Rasa Forsberg, public relations director. "But, this is a very structured program for (the participants) to gain a lot of knowledge," she added.

The program will conclude on Friday with many activities and speakers.

On Monday, Gov. Jim Edgar spoke in Dvorak Hall and Charleston Mayor Wayne Lanman also made brief remarks. Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris will speak at 7:15 p.m. in Dvorak Hall on Tuesday and State Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch will speak at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Dvorak Hall.

Girls State consists of "two political parties that reflect the city and state government of Illinois," Forsberg said.

Other guests include Piatt County Clerk Judy Greene, Coles

County State's Attorney Nancy Owen, Coles County Sheriff James Kimball and Terry Woodburn, assistant director of Americanism and Children and Youth for the National American Legion.

"The girls will file for petition, campaign and at the end of the week, there will be elections for the state officials and governor," she added.

The participant who wins the governor's seat will preside over next year's session, Forsberg said.

To be eligible for Girls State, a girl must be between her junior and senior years and in the top half of her class. She must also have an interest in government and political science.

"This is a very unique experience and not everyone is selected," Forsberg said. "Those who do attend receive a better knowledge of the working government of Illinois."

Charleston Fire Department officials said arson was the cause of a fire which resulted in $10,000 in damages early Saturday morning at 1903 Ninth St.

Officials investigate house fire

By JILL BAUTER
City editor

The Charleston Fire Department and the Illinois Arson Commission are in the preliminary stages of investigating a house fire which started near campus over the weekend.

Firefighters were called to 1903 Ninth St. early Saturday morning to extinguish the blaze, which caused an estimated $10,000 in damages.

According to Watson, the house is owned by Mike Thoele of Chicago.

Fire Chief Tom Watson said there is evidence that the fire was arson but would not elaborate on what was recovered from the scene or how long the investigation could last.

Investigators are just "trying to determine exactly what happened" to cause the fire, he said.

Presently there are no suspects in the crime, but the Illinois Arson Commission will reward up to $1,000 for information leading to a conviction, Watson said. Those who believe they have information that would help the investigation can call the Charleston Fire Department. Names will be kept anonymous, Watson said.

Watson said the penalty for arson, a felony, is three to six years in prison.

BOG review nears completion

By CHRIS BOGHOSSIAN
Editor in chief

The Board of Governor's review process of alleged hiring improprieties under an Eastern vice president is almost complete, a BOG spokeswoman said Monday.

Patricia Rea's review of alleged hiring irregularities under Eastern Vice President for Development Stephen Falk is "now in the process of being completed," said BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell.

"Patricia Rea has completed interviewing people, visiting the campus and gathering information," Brazell said. "But the report is not completed. She has to finish putting the information into a report form."

Brazell said that BOG Chancellor Thomas Layzell will have to review Rea's report as part of the process. She added that the review is not a formal investigation and it might not be presented to the rest of the BOG, the governing body for Eastern and four other state universities.

"I would assume that the chancellor would make that decision (as to whether the review will go in front of the rest of the BOG)," Brazell said. "I don't think that determination has been made." Brazell would not estimate when the review process would be

Free benefits cost elderly millions

WASHINGTON (AP) – Poor, elderly Americans are paying the government more than $790 million a year for Medicare benefits they're entitled to for free, an advocacy group said Monday.

"Millions of low-income elderly are eligible but no one has notified them that the benefit even exists," said Ron Pollack, executive director of Families USA Foundation.

Congress last fall increased the number of senior citizens eligible for free Medicare coverage, exempting those with incomes below the poverty line. The Medicaid program is to make their payments, including the $29.90 monthly premium and as much as $728 in deductibles and 20 percent of all doctors' bills.

asked me to meet with a group, and I agreed. He didn't give me an agenda for the meeting. I'm generally available to meet with people about concerns, and I'll do that (Tuesday)."

Schmitt said that the group of workers is hoping to come out of Tuesday's meeting with an idea of what action Rives will take to meet its concerns.

"We're hoping that (Rives) indicates to us some deadlines in the near future of what will take place," Schmitt said. "We don't know whether to anticipate that or not.

We feel we're in the dark right now with issues that we think need to be addressed.

"We think that he would be concerned with what the majority of Eastern has to say."

The March meeting was scheduled after the president addressed the university on the results of the Stanczak report, an investigation into allegations of hiring improprieties in the office of former Vice President for Business Affairs Verna Armstrong, who later was fired by Rives.

Rea, the BOG's assistant vice chancellor for legal affairs, was assigned to review the hiring process late last month after the Faculty Senate asked the BOG to hold a formal investigation of the hiring process.

Rea was unavailable for comment on Monday.

The senate claimed that in the 1989 hiring of Arthur Rathjen, the assistant vice president for development, affirmative action guidelines and goals were completely disregarded. The senate also claimed that the position was not advertised at all, which is against regulations.

This is the second time in less than a year that the BOG has intervened into the hiring process of an Eastern vice president.

Last fall, the BOG hired Bloomington attorney David Stanzak to look into alleged nepotism and hiring discrepancies under Eastern's former Vice President for Business Affairs Verna Armstrong, who was subsequently terminated from her position by Eastern President Stan Rives.

Falk and Rathjen worked together at Central Michigan University before Falk came to Eastern in the early 1980s.

After the play last night, the seniors spent the remainder of the night decorating the assembly room. As a result the room looked very beautiful this morning. The seniors expect to spend the rest of the day in celebration. They will dedicate their class gift, two pair of beautiful gates to the athletic field, at 4:30 p.m. today.

Last Monday night, Mr. and Mrs. Lord gave their annual reception to the seniors, faculty and friends of the school. the yard was screened from the street by busheds and palms and was beautifully lighted by Japanese lanterns.

The house was decorated in the colors of the senior class and of the school and everything was as attractive as could be. Grape punch, ice cream and cake was served. On leaving the reception the seniors felt that they were better acquainted with the different members of the faculty than they ever expected to be when they entered the school.

Bill Glenn, Eastern's passing sensation, concluded final arrangements recently for a contract with the Chicago Bears professional football club. Glenn will report to the Bears in Chicago on Aug. 10. His contract call for a salary of $125 a game.

Last fall as a quarterback on the Panther football team, Glenn staked a claim for a national passing record when he ended up the season by completing 71 of 109 attempts for an average of 66 percent.

Eastern's botany department will sponsor a series of illustrated lectures and excursions around the campus as a special feature for the summer term. Anyone interested, whether a botanist, is welcome to attend.

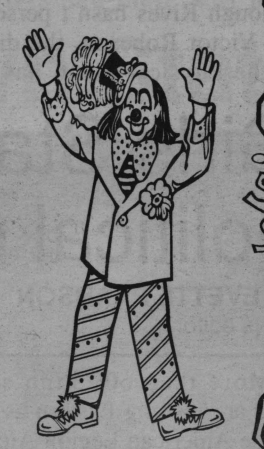

Plans have been made by the music department at Eastern to hold Tuesday evening music hours during the summer term in the auditorium of the Main building. The public is cordially invited to these programs, for which there is no admission charge.

Gov. Jim Edgar addresses the proposed budget, education and the future to Illini Girls Staters Monday night in Dvorak Concert Hall. He also swore in newly elected officials for the week-long program.

'You are fortunate'

Edgar addresses Girls State participants

By EVETTE PEARSON
News editor

While Illinois legislators ponder the budget problems and money for education, Illini Girls Staters expressed their concerns and questions to Gov. Jim Edgar Monday night in Dvorak Concert Hall.

"It's hard enough trying to get into a good college with the amount of money I have," said one mayor of Illini Girls State.

Edgar addressed the issue of education and his proposed budget while saying "education is my No. 1 priority."

The audience applauded loudly as Edgar was escorted into the building, opening his speech with, "I enjoy (attending) Girls State more so than Boys State because you're not only better looking...you're very fortunate."

"You're fortunate because you're the best in your schools and you have a precious opportunity for the government to share their thoughts with you," Edgar said.

Edgar touched on the topic of education and his proposed budget to the legislature and told the young women "you must be prepared to make tough decisions."

"We're out of money and we're deep in debt," he said. "We need to cut spending to meet revenue and be prepared to take programs and say no, even if it costs votes and makes people unhappy."

Edgar has been attending Illini Girls State for 11 years and noted the tremendous amount of effort and dedication put into making the program "a success."

"The volunteers from the American Legion Auxiliary should be applauded because they have given much of their time and made many contributions to this program," he said.

Before concluding his speech, he said he eluded back to the beginning of his speech when he said "politics makes government work," but "the biggest mistake politicians make is breaking promises they can't keep."

He told the audience to "be straight forward and loyal in whatever you do, set limits and priorities and remember that compromising is the key, especially for the long-term best interest of the state."

"Most of all, remember to learn and practice what you have learned here (at Eastern) this week because this will be an experience you can carry with you for the rest of your life," he added.

The recently elected mayors and judges of Illini Girls State, the city clerks, treasurers and aldermen of various counties were sworn into office by Edgar to conclude the program.

The participants gave Edgar an official Illini Girls State T-shirt and the official handbook of the conference to show their appreciation for his attendance.

Summerfest '91 opens with 'The Mousetrap'

By SUZANNE OLIVER

Though it may not receive the fanfare here as it does in England, as the longest running stage production ever, Agatha Christie's play, "The Mousetrap" will open at Eastern's theater in the Fine Arts Building, June 19 at 8 p.m. and will close June 30.

The record-breaking production is in its 39th year and performed at St. Martin's Theatre, in London's West End district which is considered England's equivalent to Broadway.

Christie's play of the "classic murder mystery" is adapted from her short story "Three Blind Mice," set in the early 1950's. The fatal tale depicts strangers who find themselves stranded in an English boarding house, terrorized by the prospect of a murderer in their midst.

Eastern cast member Jim Pierson (Major Metcalfe) says that Christie fans and murder mystery buffs alike will appreciate the classic 'whodunnit' characteristics of this play.

"If people know the way Christie is, they know (the play) is one where absolutely everyone could have done it," added Pierson, who is a junior theater major.

Pierson's character Major Metcalfe is in the Guinness Book of World Records for the longest stage portrayal by actor David Raven for 11 consecutive years.

This is the second year Eastern's theater department has offered a summer theater company which presents a package of shows for both student actors and actors outside Eastern's campus to produce and perform.

"We did it essentially for (the theater department) and the students," said Jerry Eisenhower, director for "The Mousetrap."

Eisenhower said the production is sponsored through the university where students can receive class credit or salary for their work.

"People have come from all over and are responsible for more than just the performance. They are also responsible of the technical part," Eisenhower said, which includes sound, lighting, props, publicity and costumes along with other production preparations.

Eastern's Summerfest '91 theater company offers subscription packages at a 25 percent discount from regular ticket price for the four plays, "The Mousetrap," "The Velveteen Rabbit," "Stop The World, I Want To Get Off" and "The Miss Firecracker Contest" until June 30.

However, Pierson said theater-goers not interested in the package can buy tickets at the rates of $6 for adults, $5 for seniors and youth and $3 for Eastern students with the exception of "The Velveteen Rabbit" costing $1 for all ages.

The ticket office is opened from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and tickets are available one hour before a performance.

Driver injured after losing consciousness

By JILL BAUTER
City editor

A Charleston woman was ticketed after a three-car accident last Wednesday at the intersection of Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue.

Judy A. Miller of Charleston was hospitalized after her car collided into the back of the vehicle in front of her, which was driven by Rick Everett, also of Charleston. The impact of the crash sent Everett's car into the car in front of him, driven by an Eastern student, Joy A. Bishoff of Lake in the Hills.

According to a police report, Miller "blacked out prior to striking (Everett's vehicle) and could not add any details of the accident."

According to Miller, her doctors are still running tests to determine why she lost conscious before the accident. Miller said she went from a cold environment to her hot car and that might be a factor.

Miller suffered injuries to her lip and left leg. She was released from Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center on Friday.

The police report estimated that more than $250 damage was done to each of the cars involved in the accident.

Passengers involved in the accident were Robert Valencic, riding in Everett's car and David Suoboda, riding in Bishoff's car. Miller was driving alone.

The stoplights at the intersection of Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue were flashing red at the time of the accident, but Miller said that was not a factor in the collision.

Bush optimistic on arms treaty

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — President Bush said Monday he had received a "very positive" letter from Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev narrowing some of the last differences on a major treaty to slash long-range nuclear weapons. "I'm a little more optimistic now," he said.

"I'd say it's a narrowing of differences and we're in agreement here where it's 96 percent — or, you know, close to it — concluded," Bush said. Yet, he said, "I'm afraid we haven't solved it all."

"I wouldn't say 'breakthrough' but I think it's 'progress,'" the president said, adding that he was eager to hold a summit with Gorbachev this summer even before the final technical language of a treaty is written.

While saying the two sides are not widely apart, Bush said that "some of the differences that remain are fairly difficult." Negotiators have been working for nearly a decade on an accord to reduce the deadliest weapons in the superpowers' arsenals.

Administration needs to clear controversies

In late May, the Board of Governors announced that one of its lawyers would again review a hiring under another Eastern administrator.

This "review" stems from a Faculty Senate request that the BOG, Eastern's governing body, investigate the 1989 hiring of Arthur Rathjen because the senate alleged it found flaws in that hiring procedure.

Senate Chair David Carpenter told The News that affirmative action guidelines were completely disregarded and the position was not advertised at all. The senate alleges Rathjen, the assistant vice president for development under Stephen Falk, was the only person interviewed for that position.

Although not an official investigation, the review of the alleged hiring improprieties under an Eastern vice president by the BOG is the second in less than one year, and represents the third time the BOG has had to intervene into Eastern administrative matters.

Last fall, the BOG investigated alleged nepotism and hiring irregularities under former Vice President for Business Affairs Verna Armstrong, who was later fired by Eastern President Stan Rives. And Rives was under fire from the BOG after the alleged mishandling of a sexual harassment complaint against Eastern's distinguished professor, Efraim Turbin.

BOG spokeswoman Michelle Brazell told The News last week that the BOG often reviews affirmative action regulations under hirings at all five of its universities.

Obviously, the most recent allegations at Eastern are more prominent than a routine review because of the administrative controversies that have taken place at Eastern since last fall.

But if the BOG continually has to intervene in administrative matters at Eastern, and until the school puts an end to all of the controversies surrounding its administration, it is going to have a very difficult time ridding itself of the dark cloud looming over the campus.

Bar's offensive gimmick is a 'no sale'

Last week I was trying to unwind with some friends at one of Charleston's uptown bars. However, I found it difficult to relax as I stared up at the big sign in orange lights that read "Get a (oral sex act) at (bar's name)". The shot that the bar was trying to advertise is named after oral sex performed on a man. As you may know, most bars sell that shot by the same name. But am I wrong for finding the sign distasteful, and perhaps offensive?

Jill Bauter

I'm not so uptight that I can't find humor in the whole thing. I wondered, though, what businessman with any dignity or respect would approve of such a tacky display? Yet I wasn't in the mood to tangle with anyone over it. That is, until I heard the bartender bragging about his clever slogan.

"So you're the one I should complain to?" I asked with friendly intentions. I simply meant to point out that the sign was in poor taste. With all the arrogance of a small, vicious dog, he barked "Hey, it's a shot, babe." Profound. And then he mumbled something about his girlfriend sitting at the other end of the bar. I'm still wondering what she had to do with the whole thing.

My intention is not to make a fool of the bartender. I have a feeling he is more capable of doing that by himself. What bothers me is that he, and probably countless others, find nothing wrong with splashing those words all over the walls in the most conspicuous way possible. I admit that "Get a gin and tonic at (bar's name)" is not quite as catchy, but it certainly wouldn't offend anyone.

The attitude of people our age is reflected in the music we listen to, the clothes we wear, and the entertainment we seek. The sign reflects an attitude that should be discouraged. In an age of sexually transmitted diseases, unwanted pregnancy, and moral decline, maybe this isn't the message we ought to be sending. The sign was the product of one crude individual, but there are other examples.

Our generation is criticized for being promiscuous and sexually irresponsible. I am inclined to agree. A guy once explained to me that a condo was a jinx, of sorts. If he carried one around in his wallet, he'd never have the opportunity to use it. He contracted AIDS, that would be the least of his worries.

We didn't learn such backward thinking from school or our parents, we learned it from each other. We're old enough to know better. Such casual attitude toward sex is not only immature, it's dangerous.

Living in a small college town isolates us in many ways from the adult world we came from. Most of us have limited contact with Charleston adults, aside from our professors and employers. We get away with more in our actions as students because there is little recourse for socially unacceptable behavior. Unless we impose standards for acceptable behavior on ourselves, there are none. Of course, some adults are guilty of the same crude, immature behavior. But, I assume these are the not people we want to be like.

It is likely that the bar was not trying to attract responsible, mature students. After all, it is a business and responsible, mature students probably don't spend as much money on alcohol, right? Judging by the sparse crowd, maybe they should try a different strategy.

Even though hanging out at a bar isn't the most honorable of pastimes, I didn't see any reason to lower myself any further. So I did the only respectable thing - I left.

Students unhappy with $15 surcharge for graduation

Dear editor:

Upon applying for graduation, we were charged a $15 fee. Is graduation such a unique ending to an academic career at Eastern that it requires an additional cost? A $15 surcharge just to confirm that we have completed the requirements for graduation, a fact of which we are well aware, is redundant and ridiculous.

A graduation checklist may prove beneficial to some students, but this normal administrative task should be covered by our years of tuition and fees. This $15 fee only encourages the bureaucratic waste and inefficiency that runs rampant at this institution. Graduation is earned and should not be held for a ransom of $15.

Despite efforts, Charleston DUIs are on the increase

By LORI TEIBER
Staff writer

The number of driving under the influence of alcohol arrests is increasing in Charleston — not decreasing — despite law enforcement officials' efforts and stiffer penalties.

According to Charleston police records, in 1990, 157 people in Charleston were charged with a DUI. Out of this number, 53 were underage.

In 1989, the number was 140, 116 of which were men and 33 of which were underage. The total in 1989 was substantially higher than the previous year. Eighty-one residents were charged with the offense in 1988 and 71 of that total were males. Eighteen were under age 21.

In 1987, 85 people were charged with a DUI in Charleston. Seventy-one of these people were men with the largest percentage falling into the 16-20 range, according to the Charleston Police DUI Age and Sex Breakdown records.

While the women had a much lower number of DUIs over the four-year span, the majority of the numbers fell in the age range of 16-25.

Assistant Chief of Police T.A. Ghibellini said that the number of DUIs for Charleston is already above average for 1991.

Ghibellini said that while the numbers have increased, the number of police patrols has not. He said the police use five or six cars on the average. If the police think it is necessary, as many as 10 cars can be sent out to patrol.

"The number of DUIs has gone up because of an increased number of visual clues observed by the officers," Ghibellini said. "More people are running stop lights or swerving than ever before."

While many people charged with a DUI fit into the college-age population, it is not known exactly how many attend Eastern.

"The reason is because categorizing could cause problems within the town," Ghibellini said, adding that if too many town residents are charged with the offense, the residents may complain about the large number of college students out drinking.

As the numbers of DUIs have increased over the past four years, so have alcohol-related accidents. Coles County Coroner Dick Lynch said that while he didn't have exact numbers, he estimates 60-75 percent of vehicle deaths were alcohol-related.

"The percent remains rather consistent, with some years being a few percents either way," Lynch said.

While Charleston seems to be arresting more for DUIs yearly, other towns have considerably lower numbers. The Mattoon Police Department reported a large difference between the two close towns.

While Charleston reached 140 DUIs in 1989, Mattoon had only 21. In 1988, when Charleston had a total 81, Mattoon had 29.

According to Mattoon's police records, the largest number of arrests for alcohol was in 1990, when the total came to 42 compared to Charleston's 157.

The number of DUIs in Coles

County as a whole has been decreasing because of the stricter laws about driving under the influence of alcohol, said Deputy Robert Campbell of the Coles County Sheriff's Department.

The people of Charleston and the campus have joined together to help decrease the number of DUIs. In fall 1990, the Interfraternity Council and the Student Government founded the weekend Gus Bus service. It is funded by Charleston bar owners who rent from Mayflower Bus Service at the rate of $25 an hour.

The bus, which runs from 10 p.m. until 1:30 a.m., stops at several Charleston locations, including Ninth Street Hall, Lawson Hall, Marty's Stix, Thirsty's, Ted's, Roc's, Mother's and Friends & Co.

There is also an alternative for people who still want to drive to the bars. There is now an EIU Designated Driver Program. Local bars and BACCHUS developed a plan to provide designated drivers with 25-cent soft drinks instead of alcohol. Anyone 19 years or older can use the program as long as the person shows car keys to the bartender and conveys no signs of intoxication.

If a person decides to pass up these options and gets pulled over while under the influence, the consequences can get steep, and the penalties have become more severe over the past few years.

A first-time offender who submits to a chemical test disclosing an alcohol content of 0.10 or

The number of arrests for driving under the influence of alcohol, indicated by the numbers on the left, has increased over the last four years despite stiffer penalties for the offense.

Daily Eastern News graphic more, his or her driving privileges will be revoked for a minimum of three months.

The penalties increase considerably for second- and third-time offenders. A second-time offender loses driving privileges for a minimum of one year. Refusal to take a chemical test the second time around results in losing the driver's license for a minimum of two years.

A conviction opens up a whole different set of penalties. A first conviction results in an automatic two-year loss of driving privileges. A second conviction can result in the loss of a driver's license for at least three years, 48 hours in jail or 10 days community service. The maximum is a one-year prison term and a $1,000 fine.

After a third conviction, the driver loses his driving privileges for six years and pays up to a $10,000 fine.

Campbell said that in Coles County, a first conviction could also result in a $420 fine and alcohol treatment analysis. If an injury or fatality occurs, the penalties are much stiffer.

Yeltsin to visit Washington D.C.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin's visit to the United States this week is aimed at establishing his identity as leader of a sovereign European state, a Yeltsin spokesman said Monday.

The trip will be Yeltsin's first since winning last week's election as president of the Russian Republic, the largest and most powerful of the 15 republics within the Soviet Union.

Viktor Yugin, a leader of an advance team setting up the four-day trip, told a news conference here that the central Soviet government of President Mikhail S. Gorbachev sets the broad outlines of foreign policy for all 15 of the Soviet republics.

But specific elements of that policy will be up to the republics "It is quite natural that Yeltsin will be talking about joining the European house as a sovereign entity," the spokesman said.

In a slap at Gorbachev, Yugin added that the Russian leader would not be coming "with his hand extended, as some of our leaders do, but to discuss mutually beneficial cooperation" in developing cultural and economic ties with the United States.

Another official, Andrei Kolosovsky, said the Russian government is in the process of establishing "parallel foreign relations" with those of the Soviet government. But he said he does not foresee the two governments being in competition with each other.

Yeltsin is scheduled to arrive in Washington on Tuesday afternoon and meet Wednesday with the leaders of the House and Senate, his official hosts.

He meets with Bush and top administration officials on Thursday before departing for New York, where he is to address New York University and meet with leaders of the Federal Reserve Bank and business executives and human rights leaders.

Yeltsin was one of seven republic leaders who reached agreement with Gorbachev on Monday on the draft of a new Union Treaty defining the relationship between the Soviet government and its constituent republics. Six of the 15 Soviet republics are seeking independence and have refused to participate in the negotiations on the new treaty to replace one signed in 1922.

Bandit kills bank guards in Denver robbery

DENVER (AP) — A nationwide search began Monday for a silver-haired bandit who worked his way through an electronic bank security system and executed four unarmed guards in what authorities called a bloody, senseless crime.

United Bank of Denver employees returned to work a day after an armed robber systematically negotiated a labyrinth of security measures, eventually getting to the area with the tightest security.

There, at the bank's vault, he scooped up money from an area where workers were counting receipts; he later killed four guards, shooting some more than once.

"God knows what this sick individual's thinking is," said police spokesman David Neil.

He said it "would be safe to assume" the robber knew his way around the bank or received help from a bank employee.

Denver police continued interviewing bank employees Monday.

Investigators had no suspect but hoped he was still in Denver.

The suspect was described as a well-dressed white male, believed to be in his 40s, about 6-foot-1 with silver hair and a salt-and-pepper moustache. He was last seen wearing a derby and mirrored sunglasses.

"This is a particularly brutal robbery. We haven't had people killed in bank robberies, other than the robber, in the last five years, maybe longer," Denver FBI spokesman Dick Schussler said: The guards' bodies were discovered in the bank's heavily secured lower levels. Three were found shot to death in a security control room, where guards monitor the bank's key areas with video cameras.

The fourth guard was found in a storage area on the level below the control room, police said.

Trump files for Chapter 11 on casino

NEW YORK (AP) - Donald Trump will place his Trump Castle in bankruptcy proceedings and split ownership of the casino 50-50 with bondholders under an agreement announced Monday that resolves some of Trump's financial problems.

The deal releases Trump from about $41 million in interest and principal payments on the Atlantic City, N.J., casino that were due Monday and places the Castle in a prepackaged bankruptcy.

Substantial portions of a prepackaged bankruptcy, typically filed under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy laws, are approved in advance by creditors. Prepackaged filings are designed to speed debt restructurings.

Announcement of the deal came as New Jersey gaming regulators met to consider the state of Trump's finances. The state Casino Control Commission can take away Trump's casino license if it finds him financially unstable.

In April and May, commissioners renewed licenses for Trump's Castle and Taj Mahal casinos after finding the properties temporarily met guidelines for financial stability.

But the panel has said the developer would need to have his financial house in order and explain attempts to restructure the billion-dollar debts that weigh down his assets in and out of Atlantic City.

The agreement on the Castle allows Trump to escape an involuntary bankruptcy for failing to make the bond payments due Monday. Trump paid a similar amount Friday to bondholders in the Trump Plaza.

The Trump Castle and the bondholders' steering committee said in a joint statement they hoped a prepackaged bankruptcy would be filed by Nov. 15 and confirmed by January 1992.

Some existing bonds would be combined into a single issue of new bonds with a principal amount of about $290 million and an interest rates of about 9.5 percent, down from the existing 13.75 percent.

The interest will be paid in cash and in additional bonds.

Catan heads list of new inductees

By R.J. GERBER
Sports editor

A large part of the decision of Pete Catan, who has been selected to the Eastern Athletic Hall of Fame, to come to Eastern and eventually lead the Panthers to a 1978 NCAA Division II football title was affected by former Eastern faculty member Robert Sonderman.

Catan, who was a three-time All-American and holds the records for most quarterback sacks and tackles for a loss, was originally from Rochester, N.Y. When he visited Eastern's campus, Sonderman, the industrial technology faculty member, showed Catan and his father around.

"He and his father had a whole list of questions," Sonderman said. After showing Catan around the university, the defensive line-man made the decision to become a Panther.

"I feel that one of the main reasons I came to Eastern was Dr. Sonderman," Catan said from Orlando, Fla., Monday. "He became like a father to me. He showed me the ropes of how to become a good student and how to graduate in four years."

Catan, now the defensive line coach for the Orlando Thunder of the World League of American Football, said Sonderman was a man to look up to.

"He was a significant role model," Catan said. "It was his persistence and work ethic. He enjoyed what he did."

Sonderman, who observes officials for the Gateway Conference said Catan was one of the best students he met at Eastern.

Pete Catan

"He is one of the best kids I've ever worked with," Sonderman said. "He did his job and others too on the field. I used to do some officiating and he would ask me what officials looked for."

"He was so quiet and reserved and so gentle off the field," Sonderman said. "But on the field he was a mean one. He was just a hard worker."

"He carried a sledge hammer around campus with him. It sort of became his trademark."

Seles, Edberg grab top seeds

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) She has won the tournament a record nine times and is the defending champion. But Martina Navratilova won't be the top seed at Wimbledon.

"I wonder how many times I have to win it," said Navratilova, seeded fourth by Wimbledon officials who strictly followed the world rankings in determining the seeds.

Navratilova was placed behind Monica Seles, Steffi Graf and Gabriela Sabatini when the seedings were announced Monday. Seles' best showing at Wimbledon was a quarterfinal place last year.

Wimbledon has always maintained its right to ignore the world rankings and has done so in recent years to seed players such as John McEnroe higher than their rankings would merit.

But the All England Club stuck to the world rankings this year, rejecting speculation in British newspapers over the weekend that Navratilova would receive the top women's seed.

The men's seedings also go according to ranking, with defending champion Stefan Edberg as the top seed and three-time champion Boris Becker the second seed. Ivan Lendl is seeded third, followed by French Open champion Jim Courier and Andre Agassi.

Seeded sixth to 10th among the men are Michael Stich, Guy Forget, Pete Sampras, Michael Chang and Goran Ivanisevic.

Emilio Sanchez is 11th, followed by Andrei Cherkasov, Jakob Hlasek, Karel Novacek, Brad Gilbert and John McEnroe.

Among the women, fifth seed Arantxa Sanchez Vicario is followed by Mary Joe Fernandez, Jana Novotna, Zina Garrison and Katerina Maleeva. The 10th seed is Jennifer Capriati, followed by Helena Sukova, Nathalie Tauziat, Natalia Zvereva, Anke Huber, Amy Frazier and Sandra Cecchini.

The United States has the most seeds in both the men's and women's draws, with six seeded men and five seeded women.

The Press Association, a British news agency, referred to the seedings as the work of "faint-hearted Wimbledon officials."

Graduation rates down for collegiate athletes

By The Associated Press

While graduation rates for Division I basketball players are about the same as the general student body, a USA Today survey indicates that the better the teams, the worse the students.

The newspaper's study of Division I schools showed that 46 percent of all players, men and women, graduated, compared with 48 percent for all students.

At the same time, however, graduation rates for the Big Ten, Southeastern, Big Eight and Atlantic Coast conferences were more than 10 percentage points below the overall student body's.

USA Today polled all 257 Division I schools for the survey.

Seventy-six percent of the schools responded to the questionnaire, and the newspaper took one year to complete the study. The NCAA will publish school's graduation rates later this year.

The study also showed: — Only 36 percent of minority players earned degrees within five years, but that was better than minority students from the rest of the study body. The Department of Education reports that 31 percent of blacks and 33 percent of Hispanics graduate within five years.

Women basketball players graduate at much higher rates, 60 percent, but there are signs that the rate drops as the basketball program becomes more serious.

The Big West and Big Eight have the lowest player graduation rates. With 7 of the 10 schools reporting, the Big West had a graduation rate for players of 27 percent, the Big Eight 25 percent with 7 of 8 schools reporting.

While graduation rates for basketball players and the general student body are roughly equal, critics say that with free tutoring services, full scholarships and other benefits available, players should be graduating at a much higher rate.

The National Center for Educational Statistics points to a telling statistic. While basketball players must be full-time students to be eligible to play, overall statistics include many students who are part-time with no intention of graduating.

Of the 1980 high-school graduates who went to college full-time for four straight years, 74 percent graduated.

Bulls extend Pippen's contract

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bulls confirmed on Monday that the team had extended Scottie Pippen's two-year contract to five years.

Officials released no details of the contract, but it had been reported last week that the 25-year-old forward will earn a total of $18 million for this season, the next two years — for which he already was under contract — and the five after that.

"The contract is a great one. I'm glad to be in Chicago for years to come because it's a great city and a tremendously talented team that we have here," Pippen said in a statement released by the Bulls.

"I've worked hard to become the player I am and it makes me feel great that Bulls management was so gracious and felt I deserved the contract I now have."

Bulls Vice President of Basketball Operations Jerry Krause said, "We are extremely happy to have Scottie's contract extended. He's an important cog in our championship team and has proved without a doubt to be one of the league's premiere players."

Barker lands job

many things through the experience that I've had. I've learned a lot about basketball as far as the X's and O's of the game.

"But I've also learned a lot about public relations, the treatment of people and I've got to be around a lot of different types of people. It's been a really positive experience and I can't say enough about Coach (Rick) Samuels.

Samuels, who completed his 11th season as the head coach of the Panthers, said Barker was a big help the past two years.

"Jeff was a pleasure to have and really an asset to us," Samuels said. "He conducted himself very professionally and that is always a concern with a graduate assistant. He's a quality guy."

Barker is the fifth graduate assistant in Samuels' 11 years to move on to a coaching or teaching position. Steve Yount, head coach at Augustana was the first, then Rod Watson, who is an assistant at Southern Illinois.

Rico Ellis, a former player under Samuels, is a special education teacher at Winnetka High School. The fourth graduate assistant was Jay Genseal, who was an assistant at Lincoln College, but is going to Illini Central High.

Hall of Fame

Sheeran was an eight-time track and cross country All-American from 1976-81. He's Eastern's only four time NCAA II cross country All-American, only NCAA I All-American and was the fastest American in 1981, finishing fifth in the three mile run.

Stirrett led the Panthers to the 1969 NCAA College Division

Championship by finishing sixth in the mile. He also won the conference distance championships four times.

"The voting for this year's induction into the Hall of Fame was particularly spirited with some extremely close vote counts among the top candidates," said EIU Athletic Director Mike Ryan.

Seven new members, including Pete Catan, the defensive line coach for the Orlando Thunder of the World League of American Football, will be inducted into the Eastern Athletic Hall of Fame Sept. 14.

The seven new members will be the 10th group to be inducted to the Hall of Fame. They will be honored at a ceremonial brunch that morning and will be introduced at halftime of the Eastern Washington-Panther football game, which begins at 6:30 p.m.

The 1991 inductees, who were elected by the Eastern Letterman's Club, are Catan of Orlando, Fla., Bob Fulk of Carol Stream, Jerry Heath of Charleston, Mike Larson of Tyro, Kan., Joe Sheeran of Columbus, Ohio, Dike Stirrett of Champaign and Charleston's John Pomers being honored posthumously.

Catan, a member of Eastern's 1978 Division II National football champions, lettered three years for the Panthers and holds all school records for quarterback sacks and tackles for losses.

He was a three-time Division II All American and led Eastern to a 30-9 record during his three seasons. Catan went on to earn the Rookie of the Year award for the Canadian Football League's Winnipeg Blue Bombers and was an All-Pro his second year.

He then went on to star for the now-defunct USFL's Houston Gamblers, where he led the league in sacks his rookie year and was second in his third season in that category, earning him All-Pro honors.

After the USFL folded Catan made appearances with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers and the San Diego Chargers. Catan said his effort as a Panther was one that was team oriented.

"It's a great honor to be selected," Catan said. "It took a tremendous amount of work as an individual and as a team. Specifically the 1978 championship team. My faith in the Lord helped me keep a level head."

Catan said he didn't think of his personal achievements while he was playing, but instead what the team was trying to accomplish.

"We looked at the ultimate goal," Catan said. "The championship goal for the team for (for mer head coach) Darrell Mudra."

Fulk earned seven varsity letters in wrestling and football from 1956-61. He qualified for the NAIA national wrestling tournament in 1961 and his Glenbard North High School team won 68 straight dual meets between 1980-83 while he was coaching. He recently retired to Hot Springs Village, Ark.

Heath was director of Eastern's Health Service and athletic team physician from 1956-88. In 1988 the Illinois State Medical Society honored him with the Outstanding Team Physician Award. Heath and his wife Marge, established a Sports Medicine Scholarship in 1988.

Larson was a track and cross country All-American from 1973-76. He finished third in cross country in 1975 and was the one time holder of both the indoor and outdoor mile records, and placed sixth in 1973 NCAA College Division meet and fourth in 1974.

Powers was a four-year football letterman from 1927-30 and was a member of the 1930 "uncrossed-goalline" team which gave up only two points all year. He taught at Charleston Junior High and was a lifelong resident of Charleston.

Barker lands Robinson job

By R.J. GERBER

Jeff Barker, the Eastern basketball graduate assistant the past two seasons, has accepted the head coaching position at Robinson High School.

"I saw the announcement in the Eastern Placement Center and they (Robinson) gave me a call for the first interview," Barker said. "I guess there were like 54 applicants in the beginning and they interviewed 10 in the first interview and I got called back for a second interview."

"They called me like five or six days later and told me I had the job. I'm excited about it."

The 1984 Shelbyville High graduate was a first-team quarterback, second team defensive back in football and an all-conference performer in basketball as well. He also played baseball for four years and was team captain. He earned the Most Valuable Player award his senior season in basketball.

He attended Concordia College in Milwaukee for a season, before a knee injury forced him to transfer to Eastern.

Barker said it was a dream come true to obtain a coaching position such as the one at Robinson.

"I've always wanted to be a head basketball coach and so this is my first opportunity and I realize that I'm fortunate to have the opportunity," he said. "I'll be teaching three math and P.E. classes and I'll also be assistant football coach."

Barker added that he hopes to become a coach at the college level one day, but he isn't going to rush things.

"You'd always like to further yourself, but as far as an ultimate goal, it would be to be a head coach basketball coach at the college level someday," said Barker, who led the Panther junior varsity to a 4-4 record last season.

"But that's of course down the road. I just hope we play very hard and are known to be a good defensive squad year in and year out."

Barker said it has been a well spent learning experience at Eastern.

"It's been a very, very good experience for me at Eastern being the graduate assistant coach," he said. "I've learned

Stewart wins U.S. Open playoff

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Payne Stewart paid a smaller price for his fewer mistakes and escaped with a two-stroke victory Monday in the highest-scoring U.S. Open playoff in 64 years.

Stewart added the 91st American national championship to his 1989 PGA title with a 75-77 18-hole playoff victory over stricken Scott Simpson.

It was the highest winning score in an 18-hole Open playoff since Tommy Armour beat Lighthorse Harry Cooper 76-79 at Oakmont, Pa., in 1927.

While it was hardly an artistic success — Stewart, for example, bounced one shot out of the water and made but a single birdie over the last 33 holes he played — it did not lack in drama.

Particularly over the last three, critical holes at the Hazeltine National Golf Club.

Just as he had in the two previous days, Simpson had gone to that home stretch with a two-shot lead in hand.

In regulation play Saturday and Sunday, he blew those two strokes and escaped with a tie.

This time he was not so fortunate.

Simpson, the methodical,

1987 Open champion, bogeyed all three this time, including a tee shot into water on the par-3 17th.

And Stewart made his first birdie in 31 holes with a clutch, 25-foot putt on the 16th.

The four-shot swing in three holes capped Stewart's comeback from a neck injury with the grandest title of his career and only his second victory in seven career playoffs.

Five-year-old daughter Chelsea leaped into his arms moments after Stewart closed it out with a 3-foot par-putt on the final hole.

Panther Club Classic accepting entrance forms

The 11th annual Eastern Panther Club Golf Classic and Auction, which will take place June 28 at the Mattoon Country Club, is now accepting entries from the Panther Club and their guests.

Anyone who enters by Friday will be invited to a special pre-classic reception at the home of Eastern President Stan Rives from 6-7:30 on Thursday.

"We try to accomplish two things," Eastern Assistant Athletic Director Paul Lueken said. "We want to entertain the Panther Club members and thank them for their contributions. And we also have the auction and some games during the day, so it is also a fund raiser. It's been very successful over the last 10 years and I've been associated with it for the last six. It's just a fun day and a good day to raise funds."

The cost is $55 per person which includes 18 holes of golf with cart, lunch, refreshments on the course, dinner and the auction that evening.

An evening ticket is available for $30 which includes a 6:30 p.m. reception, 7:15 dinner and auction.

Lueken said Service Star Distributing donates the majority of the auction items and Charleston IGA and Arby's donate the food. "It's a culmination of a lot of great sponsors," he added.
